RETROSPECTIVE HONOURING TONY PALMER

FALLS THE SHADOW: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF ATHOL FUGARD

ALL MY LOVING

D: Tony Palmer | UK | 1968 | 55 min

Commissioned to "explain" pop music to older BBC viewers, this collage of encounters with Hendrix, The Who, Cream and Anthony Burgess—punctuated with riot and atrocity footage—declared an end to Top of the Pops innocence.

Screening with

ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE (EP. 14, THE BEATLES)

D: Tony Palmer | UK | 1976 | 55 min

From the groundbreaking 17-part series on the social history of popular music, this genre-defining episode featuring the Beatles inspired Eric Idle's homage mock-doc on the Rutles, All You Need is Cash. Essential.

FRI, MAY 5 4:00 PM TBLB

THE BEATLES AND WORLD WAR II

D: Tony Palmer | UK | 2016 | 97 min

WWII footage meets the Beatles as sung by Elton John, Tina Turner, the Bee Gees and others? This bizarre reimagining of a 1976 film, transformed by Palmer with new music and visuals, is a provocative anti-war musical.

WED, MAY 3 1:30 PM TBLB

BIRD ON A WIRE

D: Tony Palmer | UK | 2010 | 106 min

A record of Leonard Cohen's 1972 European tour, with chronology and cliché tossed aside. No filmmaker ever got closer to Cohen than this.

SYRIA 360°

The Syrian crisis has become one of the most important human rights issues of our time. In recognition of the many perspectives and stories being captured by documentary filmmakers, you'll find Syrian-themed films throughout the Festival program.

Look for this SYRIA 360° icon next to films that focus on Syria.

Your story matters. Tell it.

That is the essence of documentary film, telling each other stories that broaden and deepen our understanding of the human condition. But documentaries, because they don't shy away from the "point of view", are also inherently subversive.

We need independent documentaries today more than ever.

It is the most democratic of art forms for the creative freedom it affords and the inclusivity of its story-telling. Documentaries thrive in democracies but remain an endangered species wherever corporate and political influences want to control the story.

In this time of "alternative facts" and "fake news", the truth seems more elusive than ever. But the passionate, independent documentary, in its quest for the small but important human truths that lead us to the larger society-changing truths, becomes a beacon of freedom of expression. Filmed on the ground among real, living, struggling, suffering human beings, the documentary connects us viscerally and intimately, and for a moment seems to heal a little of this fractured world.
